AREAS OF SPECIALIZATION

Mass Communication: media institutions, journalism, political communication Talk and Interaction: talk at work, conversation analysis, ethnomethodology

RESEARCH PROJECTS

Journalists and Public Figures in Interaction I have an abiding interest in direct encounters between journalists and public figures embodied in news interviews, news conferences, and other forms of broadcast talk. I am interested in how these encounters are organized, how their norms and practices vary over time and across social contexts, and what this can reveal about journalism, press-state relations, political communication systems, and the public sphere.

Other Institutional Talk Projects
My other institutional talk projects include studies of editorial conferences, emergency service calls, courtroom interactions, and collective audience responses such as applause, booing, and laughter.

Ordinary Conversation Projects
I am currently examining various topics in turn construction and action formation, including address terms, turn extensions, and offers and requests.

Ethnomethodology and Conversation Analysis
I have written a series of papers addressing theoretical and methodological issues in the field of ethnomethodology and conversation analysis.
